STORY OF THE PLAY

Christmas is going to be a little unusual this year as the family tries to celebrate their first “official” Christmas after Grandma’s death. Over the past year, each one including Grandpa, Samantha, and her teens, Mary and David, has responded differently to their loss, but through humorous and tender moments, they learn to rebuild their broken relationships. A beautiful Jesus stocking filled with love notes, including one special message, adds the needed healing touch.

ACT I
Scene 1

(AT RISE: Mid-afternoon, Dec. 23rd. The living room of the Chambers/Galloway home. GRANDPA and DAVID enter struggling with boxes of Christmas decorations. A number of other boxes litter the living room floor.)

DAVID: This is the last of the Christmas stuff, Grandpa.

GRANDPA: (Collapsing into a chair.) Good! I wouldn't survive another trip into the attic. My heart feels like it's about to explode.

DAVID: My heart felt like that once.

GRANDPA: Really? When?

DAVID: When George Shultz hung me upside-down off the cafeteria roof.

GRANDPA: Why did he do that?

DAVID: I wouldn't give him my lunch money.

GRANDPA: Good for you. Did he get in trouble?

DAVID: Sort of. My friend Boxer gave him a killer wedgie.

GRANDPA: Thank you, Boxer. Look at all this stuff. Your mother is just like your grandmother. Never throws anything away.

DAVID: Garbage phobia.

GRANDPA: Exactly.

DAVID: Should we surprise Mom and set up the tree?

GRANDPA: I don't see why not. All you have to do is find the box.

DAVID: (Sorts through the boxes until he gets to the one labeled "Christmas Tree.") Here it is. (Begins pulling out broken pieces of branches.)

GRANDPA: I believe this tree has seen better days. But so have I, so I guess I shouldn't judge it.

DAVID: Hey, Grandpa, will Christmas be okay this year? I mean ... last year we didn't do anything.

GRANDPA: I know what you mean, David. I hope so.

DAVID: Will Mom have to work on Christmas?

GRANDPA: You'll have to ask her. She worked last year because she wanted to.

The Jesus Stocking

DAVID: Grandma dying at Thanksgiving sort of spoiled Christmas.

GRANDPA: Yes, I guess it did. But I don't think she did it on purpose.

DAVID: I know. She just wanted to get to Heaven in time for Christmas.

GRANDPA: Let's pray this Christmas will be better.

DAVID: Grandpa, as long as you're here it will be all right.

(MARY enters with her latest boyfriend, CLYDE.)

GRANDPA: Hello, pumpkin. You're just in time to help sort through our holiday mess.

MARY: Sorry, Grandpa, but Clyde and I have to study.

GRANDPA: Study? It's Christmas vacation.

MARY: We want to get ahead in homework.

DAVID: Since when?

MARY: Nobody was talking to you, David.

DAVID: I was talking to you, Mary. Mom's going to be home soon.

MARY: So what?

DAVID: Maybe we can do something as a family.

MARY: In your dreams. Mom hasn't done anything with us since Grandma ... since last year.

GRANDPA: She's hurting, Mary.

MARY: Who isn't? Come on, Clyde.

DAVID: So, Clyde, what are your intentions concerning my sister?

MARY: Mind your own business, David. Come on, Clyde.

(MARY and CLYDE exit.)

DAVID: (As THEY exit.) Just remember, you were named after Mary in the Bible. The Virgin Mary.
